Clinics closed

Factoids:

- A clinic worker that quit after only four hours on the job came forward to tell of illegal and filthy conditions at one of Akpulonu's abortion mills, including rusty instruments, cockroaches in the operating rooms, and the mishandling of aborted baby remains.
- Patient A.A. came forward and told the California Medical Board how she was raped by Akpulonu who placed his hand over her mouth when she tried to scream. After he had raped her, he told her she had a beautiful body and slipped his business card inside her bra and told her to call him anytime. Source: California Medical Board Accusation No. 17-95-46707
- Once A.A.'s rape story became public, other women began coming forward with similar stories. Another clinic worker also came forward. Akpulonu's license was revoked in 1996.
- Fearing arrest, Akpulonu disappeared and remains at large as a fugitive.
